

MARKATTACK

Markattack, the indie/electro project of Vancouver, BC's Mark Wiebe, came into being as the offspring of two of Wiebe's other music projects, Sinewave (sinewavemusic.ca) and Guitaro (guitaro.ca). The Markattack solo project became the outlet for Wiebe's songs that didn't fit into the musical spectrum of Sinewave's downtempo beats or the shoegazey space rock of Guitaro. Influenced by the likes of Darkel, The Radio Dept. and Postal Service, Markattack highlights Wiebe's pop and electro indulgences.

After years of waiting on the sidelines while Sinewave and Guitaro were getting all the action, Markattack finally landed a starring role with the song Infinite Possibility. The song is now the opening theme for the new original series The Best Years on Global Television in Canada and on The N, a programming arm of MTV Networks in the U.S. Riding the momentum of this initial success, Wiebe is working on completing the debut Markattack album to be released later in 2007.

Although a first for Markattack, Infinite Possibility is not the first song of Wiebe's to hit the television airwaves. His debut as a film composer came in 2004 with the soundtrack for the Leo Award winning documentary, Wrestling With The North, and has since had songs featured on shows and movies in the US and Canada, including The L-Word, Godiva's, Trump Unauthorized and Murder in the Hamptons.
